

Master of Arts in Asian Studies

Now accepting applications for 2015

The Master of Arts in Asian Studies (MAAS) is a growing interdisciplinary program drawing on excellent faculty resources in various departments in the School of International and Public Affairs, including Art History, Global and Sociocultural Studies, History, Modern Languages, Politics and International Relations, Religious Studies, and more. This program is designed for students who wish to pursue advanced studies of the traditional cultures and modern socio-economic trends of Asia, with an emphasis on China and Japan.

Thematic Areas of Study

Political Economy of China and Japan
Chinese and Japanese Society and Culture
Politics of East Asia
Asia and World Affairs
Asian Economics and Business
Asian Religious Traditions
Asian Arts and Literature

Resources at Florida International University and South Florida

Annual Conferences
Ongoing Lectures
Edited Journal (Japan Studies Review)
Other Top International Programs
Excellent Advising and Outreach
Internship Opportunities
Asian Museum Collections
Morikami Museum and Japanese Gardens
Consulate General of Japan in Miami
Asian-related NGOs

CORE FACULTY

Dr. Thomas Breslin, Professor
China and International Relations
Dr. Steven Heine, Director and Professor
East Asian Religions and Culture
Dr. Nathan Katz, Professor
Buddhism and Hinduism
Qing Lai, Assistant Professor
Sociological Methods (China)
Dr. Matthew Marr, Assistant Professor
Japanese and Comparative Sociology
Dr. Amy Marshall, Assistant Professor
Japanese History
Dr. Eric Messersmith, Lecturer
Japanese Politics and Culture
Dr. Steven Vose, Assistant Professor
Indian Religions and Society
Dr. Bin Xu, Assistant Professor
Chinese and Asian Sociology
Dr. Lidu Yi, Assistant Professor
Asian Art History
Dr. Hitomi Yoshio, Assistant Professor
Japanese and East Asian Literature
Dr. Julie Zeng, Associate Professor
China and International Relations